DETAILED ACTION

 Claims 1-14 are pending in the following action, with Claims 10-14 withdrawn from consideration

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 23 September 2008 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. As stated in the previous action, based upon Applicant's arguments the examiner understands that the invention which Applicant intends to be claimed is plug and a receptacle combined into one inseparable unit, the breadth of the current claim language presented for consideration does not clearly require that interpretation. It is well settled that limitations argued are not read into the claims where the plain language of the claims provides for a broader interpretation. Applicant has sufficient opportunity to amend the claim language to be consistent with the desired interpretation during prosecution. The teachings of Kao in view of what is old and well known in the art teach the limitations of a plug and a receptacle combining as a connector, with the plug being inserted into the receptacle. The claims as written do not require that the plug component and receptacle component are connected via an interface other than the plug and receptacle. As written the claims could be interpreted as requiring that the plug component is inserted into the receptacle, and that being the only connection between the two. Therefore, the previously applied rejections under 35 USC 103 are maintained

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
  - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S.
   Patent Application Publication No. 2004/0033726 ("Kao") in view of what is old and well known in the art.
- 5. As for Claim 1, Kao teaches a card type USB connector (Figure 13) comprising a card type plug having a plurality of pins on top of the plug body and a card type receptacle for receiving the card type plug comprising a plurality of receptacle pins corresponding to the pins on the plug body. Kao does not explicitly teach that the pins are electrically turned on or off according to the contact between the plug and receptacle, but the examiner takes OFFICIAL NOTICE that it is old and well known in the art that USB signal pins are not electrically active until a power circuit as been completed, and that does not occur until the USB power rails connect with each other in the plug and the receptacle.

- As for Claim 2, Kao further teaches that the plug and receptacle are polygonal in shape (Figure 13).
- 7. As for Claims 4-5 and 7-8, Kao teaches the USB card type having a card type plug with a plurality of pins on top of the plug body and a card type receptacle for receiving the card type plug comprising a plurality of receptacle pins corresponding to the pins on the plug body. However, Kao does not teach an adapter to convert from the USB card type to USB type A or USB type B. The examiner takes OFFICIAL NOTICE that it is notoriously well known in the art that one electrical standard may have multiple types of connectors and it is necessary to provide for a way of physically converting one of the connectors via an adapter to match the other. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have manufactured an adapter to convert a card type USB connection as taught by Kao to a standard USB type A or type B connection to allow for communication between devices that utilize different connector types.
- As for Claims 3, 6, and 9, Kao further teaches that the plug has guide projections to block a reverse insertion into the receptacle (Figures 8-10).
